

Dr. AURÉLIEN CONRAUX, has been head records manager for the National Library of France (BnF) since 2009. A former archivist for the military and consultant for intergovernmental organizations with academic background in management, political science and sociology, he is now in charge of implementing the Library's records management policy. Specialized in electronic documents and records records, he has published several articles and is regularly invited to workshops and training sessions about information governance. He is part of the main French professional think tanks specialized in records management (AFNOR, AAF, CR2PA) and serves as lecturer at the École nationale des chartes for "Management and Project Management".